

THE NEW DAWN IN BRECKINRIDGE!

When the Principle of the Golden Rule Will Dominate and the Community Spirit Will Be Uppermost In the Minds and Hearts of Breckinridge People Such Will Be the Concrete Results of Good Roads. "We Are Going Forward Together."

God told Cain when he slew Abel, that he was "his brother's keeper," and there even at that remote date began the brotherhood principle between fellowmen.

Through the ages this principle has been lost sight of intermittently because of men's avaricious selfishness but it always survives, and comes again even as it did two thousand years ago in Christ's golden rule, of "Do unto others as you would have them to do unto you," and later it has come to us in the modern form of community co-operation for community welfare. Within the past few years as never before, community co-operation has become a recognized principle of conduct, for instance it is the recognized right of all governments to prevent profiteering at the expense of the public in any great emergency.

Also a man is not granted today, the right to heel himself, and then draw in his hole after him and say "to hell with the rest of them," but he must live or die, sink or swim right along with the rest of us and by the exercise of our voting franchise, we see to it that he does come across with his share of money for public improvements. He has made his money among us, and in most instances it has come out of our hides, and is part ours. Just as any public trust is part ours. So we go to the polls and vote that the man who has made his money among us shall help to improve our community, by paying taxes for that purpose.

We Must Co operate

This principle will apply also to the well fixed farmers who have gotten in to their hands well improved farms and are able to live on them quite comfortably, not caring to add anything to the value of the farms or to make any more money than they are making at present; and they too virtually say to the poor farmer and the tenant "help yourself the best you can," I am comfortable. But no! We say to him again, "you made that money among us and off of us, so come clean, old man! Co-operate! We live or die, sink or swim, together. Our community must go forward together."

So we go to the polls and vote that this man shall come out of his comfortable hole and help in the progress of the common welfare, by paying taxes to help make public improvements.

This is what we are going to say when we go to the polls on April 30th, to vote on the question of whether or not we shall have some more money to put in to good roads. We are glad to say that such men as described above are in the minority.

Thank Heaven, most of the real men of affairs of our county are progressive and follow the golden rule, and are heart and soul for the road tax, and intend to work for it and vote for it, but the other class of moss backs is the class that holds back progress in any community, and there are several of them here.

But we live in a country and in an age when by our vote we can say to such trusted individuals, "stand up, old man, and do your bit." Our farms need better roads to deliver their products to market. The past winter was a horrible example of the effects of bad roads on farmers.

What Other Counties are Doing

Up yonder in Jefferson and Fayette counties, the farmers are FARMING this very moment. Their tobacco was delivered last winter, when they could not hit a tap on their farm. Now they are FARMING while we are still delivering our tobacco, because all last winter we were simply cut off on account of road conditions.

Now on whom does this condition fall the hardest? We know that it falls the hardest on the middle class farmers and on the poor farmer and tenants, who have to depend on the item of time to make good; who have to work. They were laid up all last winter, and are spending these precious days doing hauling and many other forms of work that could have been done before with good roads.

Road Tax an Investment

A tax for roads is not a tax, but an investment, that comes right back to the farmers' very door, and soon he sees evidence of returns from his investment. Often the land is increased ten times its original value, along hard surfaced roads. Besides that, we have roads that will enable us to attend church and school the whole year round and at the same time reducing many times over the entire cost of worn out horses, mules, buggies and wagons and all other vehicles of transportation.

So let us say once for all, "we are going forward together." BIG MAN, Little Man, all, you are going to do your bit for our dear old Breckinridge. BRECKINRIDGE BOOSTER CLUB.

When I Get to the End of the Way.

My life is a wearisome journey;
I'm sick with the dust and the heat,
The rays of the sun beat upon me,
The briars are wounding my feet,
But the City to which I am journeying,
Will more than my trials repay;
All the toils of the road will seem nothing
When I get to the end of the way.

There are so many hills to climb upward,
I often am longing for rest,
But He who appoints me my pathway
Knows just what is needful and best.
I know in His word He has promised,
That my strength shall be as my day;
All the toils of the road will seem nothing
When I get to the end of the way.

He loves me too well to forsake me,
Or give me one trial too much;
All His people have been dearly purchased,
And Satan can never claim such:
By and by I shall see Him and praise Him,
In the City of unending day;
And the toils of the road will seem nothing
When I get to the end of the way.

When the last feeble step has been taken,
And the gates of the City appear;
When the beautiful songs of the angels
Float out on my listening ear;
When all that now seems so mysterious,
Shall be plain and as clear as the day,
Then the toils of the road will seem nothing
As I get to the end of the way.

Though now I am footsore and weary,
I shall rest when I'm safely at home;
I know I'll receive a glad welcome,
For the Saviour, Himself, has said "Come."
So when I am weary in body
And sinking in spirit, I'll say,
"All the toils of the road will seem nothing
When I get to the end of the way."

Cooling fountains are there for the thirsty,
There are cordials for those who are faint;
There are robes which are whiter and purer,
Than any our fancy can paint.
So I'll try to press hopefully onward,
Thinking often through each weary day,
The toils of the road will seem nothing
When I get to the end of the way.

"Meekly waiting, patient faith,
Bearing her cross so long,
She has passed in peace to a better land,
Where falls no shade of wrong;
Age and pain like a garment dropped,
Life took up a higher strain,
As the suffering form was soothed to rest,
And stilled the aching brain."

(The above poem was read at the funeral of Mrs. Geo. H. Webb, at Mobile, Ala. She was the youngest sister of Mr. Ridgely Cayce and Mr. Stuart Cayce, of Louisville.)

GENERAL ASSEMBLY VISITS COLORED NORMAL

Institute. Rep. Cain Gives Interesting Account of the Trip. Names Bills That Have Been Signed by Governor. Explains His Vote on Waggoner Amendment.

Accepting an invitation of Prof. G. P. Russel, president of the Colored Normal Institute, the members of the General Assembly, on the evening of Mar. 5th, were entertained by a generous spread of good things to eat, an exhibition of the school talent and an address by the president.

The Institution owns 300 acres of land, 35 of which are embraced by the Campus, leaving 265 acres that are devoted to agriculture. The produce of the farm last year, consisting of vegetables, corn, wheat, barley, rye, clover, timothy and alfalfa, was estimated to be worth $14,600.00. Think of that farm 265 acres with no tobacco to its credit or discredit, as you please. All labor on the farm was performed by the students. Sixty per cent of the produce was sold; the remainder being consumed in the maintenance of the school. The students canned 10,000 cans of tomatoes, corn and beans. The dairy herd is composed of 32 head of registered Jersey cattle. During the first six months of this fiscal year there was produced 4975 gallons of milk that was sold for 40 cents a gallon.

Prof. Russel is a man of remarkable attainments. A. B. and L. L. D. are written after his name and he appears entirely worthy of the degrees. The impression is made that he is a scholar and a gentleman. Although apparently conscious of being regarded as belonging to an inferior race, yet his bearing revealed no mark of servility and was sustained by a quiet, unassuming manner that commanded respect.

Following are bills that have been signed by the Governor: H. B. No. 1.—Appropriating $50,000 for State Tax Commission.

H. B. No. 35—Providing for one tax supervisor for each magisterial district.

H. B. No. 94—Providing for injunction to abate disorderly houses, declaring them public nuisances.

H. B. No. 168—Levying tax 40 cents on the $100 for State purposes, 15 cents for general expenditure fund, 18 cents for schools, 1 cent for sinking fund, 1 1/2 cents for University of Kentucky, 1/2 cent for Eastern Normal, same for Western Normal and 3 cents for State road fund.

S. B. No. 84—Re-apportioning Senatorial districts. Tenth district being thereby composed of the counties of Breckinridge, Hancock, Grayson and Hart.

S. B. No. 216—Providing for co-operative vocational education under Smith Hughes act of Congress.

S. B. No. 61—Anti Shipping bill, under which act the bringing in for personal use is denied.

The House has "Tin Canned" Old Tige." As amended the bill seeks to provide for a tax of $1.00 for one dog and $2.00 for each male and $4.00 for each female, for each additional dog. Also to require that each dog be tagged and be confined from sunset to sunrise. Tags to be furnished by County Clerk on application of owner who must give description of the dog. The calf bill was lost by falling 3 votes short of the necessary 40. Representatives Claude W. Thomas, a highly respected, leading statesman, vigorously opposed this measure after having urged the support of the Dog bill as a food measure. I failed to see the consistency of his arguments.

John Barleycorn "Gets His" in the Anti Shipping bill. Notwithstanding the fact that the necessity for an explanation is often construed as evidence of questionable motive, I have decided to risk such construction and beg to try to explain my vote on the Waggoner Amendment from which the house receded on the Senate's refusal to concur in same.

This Amendment, which provided for the bringing in of liquor on the person and in personal baggage for personal use, was offered by Mr. Waggoner, a "Dry" leader and a minister of the Gospel, on the ground that the prohibition

LATE MRS. PARKER LEAVES A WILL

Under the Terms of Which the Bank of Hardinsburg and Trust Company are Executor and Trustee.

Mrs. Sarah E. Parker, who died Mar. 4th, 1918, at Louisville, Ky., was born and reared in Breckinridge county on what is known as the Richard Adkisson farm. Her father, Winston Lowry, was a native of Virginia. Her mother, was Louisiana Helm, and a grand-daughter of Thomas Helm who settled at where Elizabethtown, Ky., now stands. Her mother married twice. First, John Roberts, the father of Louis Roberts and his brother, John. Upon the death of Mr. Roberts she then married Winston Lowry. In 1856 Mr. Lowry's family removed to Hancock county. Her father was one of the largest owners of land in Breckinridge and Hancock counties. Mrs. Parker, at her death, left quite a fortune, a part of which consisted of about 1100 acres of land in Breckinridge and Hancock counties. A large part of which in each county lies on the Ohio river. By the terms of her will, her grand nephew, Lewis J. Perkins, received her lands and four-fifths of her personality.

Her will in one particular was the most unusual tribute of confidence in The Bank of Hardinsburg & Trust Company in its management that probably has yet been made by anybody to any Institution. After creating certain trusts under her will and making the Bank of Hardinsburg & Trust Company, as Trustee and Executor, she uses the following language:

"If the Bank of Hardinsburg & Trust Company should conclude to give up this business (meaning the Executorship and trusteeship under her will) they are to select some honest and reliable party to carry out what is left to their charge."

In short, she has clothed the Trust Company with power to name its own successor in the management of her vast estate, if the Trust Company should choose to discontinue its management thereof.

Mrs. Parker was a woman of unusual strong mentality. Her husband died many, many years ago, leaving her a childless widow, and during all of these years and until her death, she has personally managed the leasing of her farms and attending to all investments of her money. She is the last of Winston Lowry's children. Her memory of Breckinridge county and its associations in her young days were cherished by her to the last as the most delightful of all memories with her. She was buried at Owensboro, Ky., by the side of her husband in Elmwood cemetery on Mar. 6th, 1918.

of such privilege was unconstitutional and would weaken if not kill the bill. It was supported by the "Dry" and approved by the "Wet" element.

Against my convictions and with many misgivings, I was thus constrained to support the measure. Although convinced in my own mind that the Amendment would defeat one of the main purposes of the bill, I hesitated to risk my judgement against that of men whose discernment I felt should be superior to mine. When the opportunity to recede was presented it was with considerable satisfaction and relief that I voted aye and as I see it we now have effective protection in "Dry" territory.

S. B. No. 137—which seeks to provide six months school term unless sufficient to extend it without reducing salary standard of teachers, to provide for Auditor to issue warrants for any installment of State School Fund for which money is not available and to fix the salary of teachers of second class schools at a minimum of $45.00 and of first class schools at a minimum of $50.00 was amended in the House to read $50 and $55 respectively.

Measures seeking to prohibit the teaching of German in Public Schools and to prohibit vagrancy and loafing have passed, one in the Senate and one in the House.

Respectfully,
Mch. 11, 1918. Roy J. Cain.

LAY HEAVY HAND ON GERMAN LABOR

Authorities Ruthless in Suppression of General Munitions Strike.

CONSCRIPTION METHODS USED

Labor Journal Tells How Workers at Brunswick Were Tricked Into Trouble, Then Sent to Prison for Long Terms.

Amsterdam.—Details of the German military authorities' ruthless suppression of an attempt at a general strike in all the munitions factories of Germany last August, no particulars of which were allowed out of the country at the time, are published in the Journal of the German Metal Workers.

In Brunswick, which is the only district particularized in the guarded story published by the Journal, martial law was immediately put into force, and both male and female strikers were sentenced to imprisonment. "It will be a long time before labor in Brunswick recovers from the wounds received," says the writer of the article. His account of the strike is in part as follows:

"The great international strike has come to an end in Brunswick, and the labor movement is richer by a very grievous experience. The strike was brought out by a few agitators, and had been in preparation for a long time.

Conscription Methods Used.

"The authorities in Brunswick indeed knew more about the threatened strike than the leaders of the local trade unions, who were unable to take counter measures to protect the working people.

"The most unscrupulous methods were used to persuade the workers to take part in the strike. Rumors were put out to the effect that the strike was for the purpose of putting an end to the control of food exercised by the authorities, also that it was to exert pressure on the employers to grant demands which had been put forward by the Metal Workers' union. It was also declared that not only in Germany, but throughout the world, in London, Paris and Petrograd, work was to come to a standstill in order to bring about peace.

"The number of persons out on strike in Brunswick the first day was 5,000, which was increased the next two days by female workers from the jam and spinning factories.

"On the breaking out of the strike the minister of the interior summoned the heads of the workman's committees. They presented a series of demands, including fair distribution of food, the eight-hour day, grant of right of free assembly, introduction of equal direct voting, peace without annexations or indemnities, permission to establish a labor journal and nonpunishment of participants in the strike.

"The minister would not discuss the demands. He stated that work must Fully Convinced Now About New Rheumatic Treatment. Pains Almost Entirely Gone.

Robert Malcom, 68, of 1317 Walnut street, Cincinnati, O., the man who told several days ago what Tanlac Rheumatism Treatment had done for him in three days has kept taking the treatment since and is now fully convinced of the new treatment's merit.

"This Tanlac Rheumatism Treatment with its radium is the best medicine for rheumatism I ever tried in my life and I've tried lots of them, too," said Mr. Malcom.

"I expect there were some folks who were a bit skeptical when I told a while back of the good Tanlac Rheumatism Treatment had done for me in just three days. They didn't think a medicine could help a person so quickly and neither did I until I started taking this medicine.

"The pains I used to have in my knees and the calves of my legs are almost entirely gone now. They used to be so bad that I could hardly climb up the two flights of stairs to my flat but that's easy for me now.

"I hope my statement will cause others to try Tanlac Rheumatism Treatment and that's why I'm giving this statement. I know I'd want somebody to tell me if they knew of a medicine that would really help rheumatism.

he resumed the next morning (Friday) or the matter would be referred to the military command. He added that the working people would suffer heavily if, against wiser counsels, they persisted in the strike. The strikers voted to continue the strike.

"A few hours after this fateful decision had been taken the orders of the military authorities were pasted up in the streets. These required that work should be resumed on Friday morning, in default of which strict conditions of martial law would be introduced.

Special Military Court.

"The instigators of the strike were the first to return to work, while the mass of the strikers gathered at their meeting place, where, however, the authorities would allow no assembly to take place.

"Meanwhile a special military court has been set up, working day and night. The arrests and trials numbered more than a hundred and terms of imprisonment up to ten months were imposed. Workers between the ages of seventeen and forty-eight who were subject to military service were brought under military control and were ordered to perform certain work, for which they would receive only military pay.

"In many families the father or mother—in some, indeed, both parents—had been condemned to long terms of imprisonment. We saw children in charge of grandparents, who mourned in common the fate that had overtaken them suddenly. Everything that could be associated with the strikers was adversely affected. The working people and their organizations suffered most severely. The negotiations on economic matters, which had been initiated with the munitions firms with the co-operation of the war office, have been suspended, and dissension has been sown in the ranks of labor."

FEAR TEACHER FAMINE

Shortage Is Noted in Various Parts of Country.

Decreased Enrollment in Normal Schools and Resignations May Bring Crisis.

New York.—The United States is facing a famine of public school teachers. The schools in various parts of the country are already suffering from a shortage of teachers. Men and women in noticeable numbers, reports from different sections say, are resigning their positions in the schools to take up other kinds of work. But the worst of the situation, as it is explained by Dr. William H. Allen, who has been a leading student of school problems for many years, is the certainty of a greatly increased shortage in the future, as evidenced by the falling off in enrollments in teachers' training schools.

"There never was a time when good public school teachers were needed as they are now and as they will be in the immediate future," said Doctor Allen. "The whole problem of Americanization and training for citizenship, as it must be met in the elementary public schools, is fundamental, yet from all over the country we hear of the failure of young men and women to register in the training schools. We are approaching a crisis."

From Iowa comes the report that 160 schools have no teachers at all. In Philadelphia as many substitutes are needed in a month this winter as are ordinarily employed in the full school year. Men have gone to the war, and woman teachers are resigning constantly. Cincinnati reports the fear of a teacher famine.

P. P. Claxton, United States commissioner of education, reports: "The shortage is constantly increasing and is embarrassingly large in some sections."

Labor Comes High.

Norwich, Conn.—Four dollars a day for pick-and-shovel men is being demanded by the laborers employed in this city. They are now receiving $2.75 to $3.25 a day. Formerly street laborers throughout the state received $1.50 a day.

Cop Knits Sweaters.

Swift & Company Publicity

At a recent hearing of the Federal Trade Commission there was introduced correspondence taken from the private files of Swift & Company, which showed that the Company had been considering for some time an educational advertising campaign.

The need for this publicity has been apparent to us for several years. The gross misrepresentation to which we have recently been subjected has convinced us that we should no longer delay in putting before the public the basic facts of our business, relying on the fair-mindedness of the American people.

The feeling against the American packer is based largely on the belief that the income and well-being of the producer and consumer are adversely affected by the packers' operations, resulting in unreasonably large profits.

Swift & Company's net profit is reasonable, and represents an insignificant factor in the cost of living.

For the fiscal year 1917 the total sales and net profit of Swift & Company were as follows:

Sales
$875,000,000.

Profits
$34,650,000.

This is equivalent to a $3,465. profit on a business of $87,500.

If Swift & Company had made no profit at all, the cattle raiser would have received only one-eighth of a cent per pound more for his cattle, or the consumer would have saved only one-quarter of a cent per pound on dressed beef.

A TOAST TO THE FLAG

By JOHN JAY DALY,
of the Vigilantes.

Here's to the Red of it,—
There's not a thread of it.
No, nor a shred of it
In all the spread of it
From foot to head,
But heroes bled for it,
Faced steel and lead for it,
Precious blood shed for it,
Bathing it Red.

Here's to the White of it,—
Thrilled by the sight of it,
Who knows the right of it
But feels the might of it
Through day and night?
Womanhood's care of it
Made manhood dare for it,
Purity's prayer for it
Keeps it so White.

Here's to the Blue of it,—
Beauteous view of it,
Heavenly hue of it,
Star-spangled dew of it,
Constant and true.
States stand supreme for it,
Diadems gleam for it,
Liberty's beam for it
Brightens the Blue.

Here's to the Whole of it,—
Stars, stripes and pole of it,
Body and soul of it;
On to the goal of it,
Carry it through.
Home or abroad for it,
Unsheath the sword for it,
Fight in accord for it,
RED, WHITE AND BLUE!

Wealthy Youths in Exclusive Chicago
Suburb Learning Useful Art of Cobbler.

Chicago.—Making and mending shoes is the latest job of scions of wealthy families of Winnetka, an exclusive North shore suburb. Instead of piloting high-powered racers or tinkering with expensive motorboats, more than a score of wealthy youths are learning the useful art of the cobbler.

H. A. DeWindt is "backing" the enterprise by furnishing funds for the renting of a shop and the purchase of initial supplies. Peter Schram, an aged cobbler, is acting as instructor.

Proceeds of the shop are to be given to the Red Cross and other war charities.

Mrs. Porter Atwood and Mrs. Louis Atwood went to Irvington Thursday to visit their brother, Lee Miller and Mrs. Miller near Paynesville.

A gentle pressure on the accelerator and the car begins to gather speed quietly, smoothly. There's no sudden jump or jerk. This is due to the wonderful Studebaker motor, whose performance under service conditions is well worth your knowing.

LIEUT. MOORMAN WRITES FROM FRANCE

That "He is Well and Happy and Ready To Do His Bit." Is Pleased With France and It's People.

My darling Father and Mother: It seems years since I have had letter or any word from home.

For many reasons, which I cannot tell you, I have not written since I left New York, and I could write volumes, even books. From my cable you may know I am well and happy; that I am in France ready to do my "bit."

When I cannot write for a very long time (if I am ever so situated again) I will cable you that I am "well" and that will mean "I am well and all is well."

Letters will also have to do for all the family. If I write one, all must consider it for each individual member of the family. Each of you must write when you can, and depend on me writing just as often as possible. It is now 2 a. m. here, it is 7 p. m. at home and I am officer of the Guard, so will have to say good-night, until I get another spare moment. France is lovely. The people are very nice, and it is good to know that I'm actually here to try and avenge some of the outrages of the "Bosches," some of which outrages I have a personal score to settle. You may address me according to the envelope and it will reach me "somewhere, sometime," very soon I hope. Remember dear ones, this is one time when you cannot wait for letters from me, you just must write often. Send this letter to Henry and to my precious sister. It is to them also, as I have no more time. Have you left the farm and are you taking care of yourselves? If you do not, you will think the "Bosches" had gotten hold of you, the next time I come home. With much love for every member of the family, and all friends, your devoted son,

Roy E. Moorman.

From a Cloverport Boy.

The letter published below is from Serg. Smith, written to a friend in this city who had been unusually kind to him. The Breckenridge News takes pleasure in reproducing this letter which is an example of the spirit that is embedded in the hearts of the home boys who are fighting for America.

Camp Zachary Taylor, March 3, 1918.
Dear Friend: Your letter I received and I was very glad to hear from you, and the clipping is very important as I am using it in our debates and lectures.

To-day I visited Privt Paul Lewis, in 29th Co. 159 Depot Brigade, and I was glad to find him well satisfied and feeling fine. Will say that six months from to day he will not look like the same fellow, he will be a better man physically and I think health should always be considered first and last.

I believe the war is going to last a long time yet and the average citizen does not realize the importance of "doing their bit" to bring it to a close, but every soldier knows his duty and is anxious to go across to help in the cause we know is just and right.

I am with Rev. Wesley Baker when he said in his sermon the last Sunday morning I was at home, that the members of every home and church should write to some soldier. It makes him feel like he must win and the spirit to win, to protect our homes and country, with the Stars and Stripes is, and will be the downfall of German militarism.

Sincerely,
Serg. Donard J. Smith.

Ear Test Your Seed Corn.

It is absolutely necessary that a widespread campaign of ear testing be begun at once, in order to obtain a sufficient supply of seed corn of strong germination. Some preliminary work can be done by culling out ears which upon inspection are obviously unfit for seed, but individual ear tests are for the most part necessary.

The rag doll method of testing individual ears is one of the simplest and economical, and is efficient. The tester consists of a strip of cloth, preferably bleached muslin, sixteen inches wide and from three to five feet long. The cloth should be marked off into squared sections and the squares all numbered. The ears to be tested should also be given corresponding numbers. Six or more kernels should be selected from different parts of each ear and placed in the proper section. When the tester is filled, fold over each side so that the edges meet in the center, roll up and soak the tester for a few hours in lukewarm water. Drain the excess water off and place the dolls in a warm place to germinate. They should be covered with a wet cloth to keep them moist, and in about five days should be sufficiently well germinated to show their fitness for seed.

Farmers, Bulletin 948, "The Rag Doll Seed Tester," describes fully this method of testing seed corn.

GRANT MOTOR CARS ADVANCE $40

Effective April 1st. Increase is Small and Attracts Attention to Thousands of Automobile Buyers.

A price increase of $40 effective April first was announced yesterday by Mr. Chas. Hamman local distributors of the Grant Six. Within the past year or two the car buying public has become used to the idea of mid-season price advance so they are accepted as a matter of course, but an advance of only $40.00 on car selling at just over a thousand attracts attention because it is so small.

"The public is gradually getting over its former belief that the car manufacturer makes several hundred dollars on each car produced," says the local Grant Six dealer. "But only those who are on the inside of the industry really know how small a profit the factory and the dealer is willing to take on a car that is produced and sold on a large scale."

"The $40 advance on the Grant Six is evidence of this. It shows that if the factory profit on its cars may be wiped out by a slight advance in costs, the small profit can also be restored by a small advance. That's the reason why the increase is $40. and not $60 or $75."

"Cars like the Grant Six whose production runs into the thousands are built on a close margin. The factory's profit per car is probably smaller than the profit on any other manufactured article one of which sell for a thousand dollars. It's the American idea, large volume and small profit per sale. Since the war started the United States has taught the English, French and Italians the idea of large scale production. And after the war they will apply the idea to other things besides war necessities. But they will never be able to overtake us in the art of making immense quantities of good motor cars at low prices."

GRANT
SIX
$1095
f. o. b. Cleveland

After April 1st

AFTER April 1st the GRANT SIX price will be $1095—an increase of $40. No apology is necessary—the car is worth it. Indeed, those who are well informed regarding motor car values will be astonished that the advance in price is so slight, unless they happen to recall that ever since the upward trend in prices started two years ago, GRANT SIX price advances have been fewer and smaller than those of any other six.

Even at $1095 the new GRANT SIX is priced too low according to prevailing standards of motor car prices. There is no other six of comparable size, beauty, power, mechanical refinement, riding comfort and fine finish at anywhere near the price.

There is no other six so economical—no other six whose thousands of owners average 20 miles to a gallon of gasoline and 900 miles to a gallon of oil—or whose owners get such tire mileage as the GRANT SIX gives.

There is no other engine like the overhead-valve engine of the GRANT SIX, with its snap, its flexibility, its quietness and freedom from vibration.

Built by men who pioneered the popularly priced six four years ago, backed by the experience gained in producing 50,000 cars, this new model is unquestionably the finest product in its price class.

The demand for GRANT SIXES this spring promises to be at least twice the output. Don't delay. Don't procrastinate. Get your order in now and make sure of the car you want, the car that saves you money the day you buy it and every day you run it—the economical GRANT SIX.

NOW, LET'S GET BUSY!

The Better Roads fight is now on. Get busy, get into line and be a booster for this important move for Breckinridge county's good.

Think of the money spent in the last twenty-five years in this county for roads. It has been absolutely thrown away and washed into the Ohio river and into Rough river. Why this waste? Simply because we didn't know how to use it.

We must get out of our wasteful way of doing things. There are standards for building roads the same as there are for building railroads. We must employ men, experienced men, and men who make it a business to build roads.

To do this we have to get in partnership with the State and the Government who will help us and put men on the job that know how.

We have a chance now to cooperate with the State and the Government by voting a tax of only 20 cents on the $100. This money will be put into the hands of competent men who will spend it for permanent well built roads.

FARM AND STOCK.

Victor Hagman, proprietor of Cedar Grove Stock Farm, near Skillman, shipped last week 53 head hogs, averaging 260 pounds, sold at 18 cents; 5 head of cattle, butcher stock, at 8 and 9 cents. Mr. Hagman reports splendid results with clover. He sowed one bushel of clover and six pounds of red top with lime, while that sowed without lime didn't do so well. Mr. Hagman makes a specialty of cattle and hogs and is a very successful farmer.

Rufus Dowell and Harvey Stillwell shipped a load of hogs from Stephensport and struck an 18 cent market.

Finis Claycomb & Bro. have 70 acres of very fine wheat on the Piggott farm. They sold 4390 pounds of Burley to John Cook at $27.50.

Muskogee Boy, champion steer over all breeds, broke the record at Oklahoma City by selling at the Red Cross sale for $3 10 per pound.

G. I. Christie, Purdue University, Lafayette, Ind., writing in the Farmers Home Journal, says the silo is now recognized as war-time institution, that the call of the Government to the farm is for increased production and conservation. The silo aids the farmer in a large and helpful way in meeting the country's need.

Experiment Stations demonstrate that silage is superior to corn fodder for dairy cows, and cows fed on silage produce thirteen per cent more milk than cows fed on corn fodder. Breckinridge county farmers ought to build more silos and produce more meat for our own people, our armies and the hungry people of Europe.

Earl Bennett had a very successful sale at his farm last Friday. There were between four and five hundred people present all hungry for bargains and falling over each other to buy. Dave Henry was the man of the occasion, helped along by Earl, who rounded them up, and the bidding was lively and brisk and the prices high. Farm machinery, tools and gearing brought all they were worth in the market. Live stock went way over the top, a pair of mules selling for $570 and an old mare, that was offered before the sale for $75, brought $130. Harvey Ditto, of Brandenburg, was the buyer.

Twenty head of two year old stock cattle went to Vic Robertson for $1,260. Jersey cow to Thos. Triplett for $86; one to Jeff Trent for $76 and one to Fred Triplett for $82.50. D. H. Smith 25 head of hogs for $411. Bud Huffines got the Dort auto for $675 and Hawkins Smith, the engine, corn crusher and cut-off saw for $100. The sale run around $5,000. Jesse Payne, who was the clerk, said it was a very successful sale, full value prices and spot cash paid.

Earl Bennett is a pretty live wire when it comes to selling farms, live stock and things that go with them. He is to the good about $20,000.

H. H. Norton, of the Webster Stock Farm, bought of J. B. Gibson, 3 head of cattle, feeders, average 900 pounds at 10 cents.

What Cost Figures Show

Investigation shows that it costs the average grocer about 18% of his sales to do business.

Eighteen cents out of every dollar taken in goes to pay running expenses

If you are a grocer, it may cost you more or less, but if it costs very much more, the situation needs looking into. If it costs very much less, the accuracy of these figures should be verified.

It costs the average dry goods man 24% of his sales to do business, the hardware dealer about 21%, the furniture dealer about 27%, the implement dealer about 17%, the jeweler about 27%, the druggist about 25%, variety stores 18%, and so on.

These figures are averages, and are valuable principally for comparison. They should not be regarded as applicable to any particular store, but if your cost percentages are very much larger or smaller, it might be well to look into the situation carefully.

The figures given above have been gathered in our search for information in regard to business problems. In harmony with our policy of helpful service, we are passing them along for the good of the cause, believing they will be appreciated by every man who makes the study of his business a part of his daily work.

NOTICE OF SPECIAL ELECTION

Notice is hereby given to the voters of Breckenridge county, Kentucky, that a special election will be held in said county on Saturday, April 20th, 1918, between the hours of 6 A. M. and 4 P. M. for the purpose of taking the sense of the voters as to whether or not they are in favor of the levy of a special tax for building and constructing permanent roads in Breckenridge county, of 20-cents on the one hundred ($100) dollars worth of taxable property, which is subject to local taxation annually for a period of ten (10) years, as provided in Chapter 2 of the acts of the Special Session of the Kentucky Legislature in 1917.

Said election to be held and conducted by the officers of election who held the regular election in November, 1917.

A Peculiar Accident

Tuesday afternoon, while painting his boat at the wharf, Carl Overton met with a most peculiar accident. There was an empty whiskey barrel on the bank, and Homer Beemer, in striking a match on the barrel to light his pipe, drew the match over the bung hole in the barrel. Immediately there was an explosion, knocking Beemer down, the barrel went up in the air about twenty feet and in descending struck Mr. Overton on the head, cutting a gash in which Dr. Chas. Lightfoot took three stitches.

MR. SIMPKINS PAYS HIS INCOME TAX

By ROBERT McBLAIR.

Mr. Simpkins gazed at the portrait on the wall till his eyes filled with tears. It was a portrait of his father, Colonel Simpkins, who had four times been promoted for valor during the Civil War and had died bravely on the field of action. Mr. Simpkins' throat ached now for two reasons: First, he revered and adored the memory of his father; secondly, his age and his eyes and his game leg wouldn't let him go to war himself. And as he observed the martial bearing and uncompromising gaze of Colonel Simpkins he saw, in imagination, the khaki-clad lads of the new generation marching forth and crossing three thousand miles of sea to fight, maybe die, for liberty.

Mr. Simpkins peered around to make sure that neither Bess nor John (who were at the teasing ages of sixteen and seventeen) were where they could see him, then he straightened and threw his right arm up for a salute. But his gaity shoulder twinged, and he groaned. He couldn't even salute.

"Damn!" said Mr. Simpkins, and with his other hand fiercely twirled his white mustachios.

He turned and limped into the library and sat down creakily before the mahogany desk on which were lying the blanks for his income tax statement, blanks which he had rather grumpily got from the Internal Revenue officer only that day after lunch on his way home from the club.

Mr. Simpkins' income for 1917 had amounted to just about $15,000, and he had been rather snappy on the subject of taxes ever since he had discovered that the more income a man has the greater the percentage of it he pays in taxes. He could think of several men who, like himself, were married and had two children, and yet, although their incomes were nearly half of his, they would pay only a small fraction of the amount he paid. He gloomily drew the blank nearer and began filling in the information that it asked for.

As Mr. Simpkins' income was $15,000 he had to figure out the amounts payable on each of the successive smaller classes of incomes in order to arrive at the total due from himself. He passed over the first class who must pay taxes, that is, single men making over 1,000. His calculation for married men then showed up as follows:

First, they pay 2 per cent. (under the 1916 law) on all income over $4,000, deducting $800 for each of their children under eighteen years. In Mr. Simpkins' case this was $212, which he put down in the "payable" column. He saw next that, under the 1917 law, married men pay an additional 2 per cent. on all over $2,000—with the same allowance for children. This added $252 to his "payable" column.

He then observed that for every $2,500 jump in his income over $5,000 he had to pay a Surtax, the percentage growing larger with each jump. This was $250 more added to his burden. And on top of all this came an "Excise Profits" tax of 8 per cent. on all "occupation" income over $6,000, making $720 more.

The total, then, he must pay was four hundred and thirty-four dollars. "Whew!" exclaimed Mr. Simpkins angrily. "There's young Henry Wilkins, who married Jake Johnson's girl, he makes $2,000 and he doesn't pay a cent of taxes. I guess this is his war as well as mine!"

Thinking of young Henry Wilkins, he remembered that Mrs. Wilkins went every afternoon to make bandages for the Red Cross and that Henry, who was a lawyer, was adding the Local Draft Board with its questionnaires.

"Well," he admitted to himself, "that makes a difference."

He thought next of Judge Willoughby, whose income was about $3,000.

"He only pays $20," commented Mr. Simpkins, not quite so angrily this time; and then a thought struck him and he sat up rigidly in his chair.

Judge Willoughby's son had been drowned on the Tuscania when it was submarined with the loss of two hundred soldiers.

"Judge Willoughby gave his son to America," muttered Mr. Simpkins.

He leaned forward suddenly and put his face in his hands.

For a long time Mr. Simpkins sat very still in that position. There was no sound in the library except the ticking of the tall clock and an occasional trill of laughter from the children skylarking upstairs. The square of light on the carpet gradually withdrew itself through the window, and first twilight and then darkness settled in about the quiet, white haired, sometimes irascible old man.

Mr. Simpkins was thinking things which he would never afterward speak of, he was thinking things that were too sacred ever to be put into words. But some inkling of his thoughts may be found in his rejoinder to Mrs. Simpkins when that placid lady came in and turned on the lights, and asked him whether he was ready for dinner.

"Judge Willoughby's only son was worth as much as fourteen hundred and thirty-four dollars, wasn't he?" Mr. Simpkins demanded of her.

As his wife, who was not unused to his superficial irritations, watched him in mild astonishment, Mr. Simpkins limped out to the hall and took his old felt hat and silver-headed cane from the hat rack. Letting himself out into the foggy evening, he tapped his way down to the corner, and mailed his income tax statement and check with his own hands.

"Now, God be thanked," said Mr. Simpkins as the lid clanked shut over his missive, "I can do this much for my country, anyhow."

Williamstown.—Leo Harvey, whose home is in Crittenden, this county, and who was in the Aero Squadron in France, was killed while flying, according to a dispatch received by his brother. He was in the United States Navy several years.

Paducah.—Alterations in the Riverside Hospital have been promised by the City Commissioners following an inspection of the infirmary by Miss Flora E. Keene, of Louisville, State Inspector for the State Board of Examiners for Trained Nurses.

Hellier.—Despondent because her sweetheart had departed for Camp Zachary Taylor to report for duty, Miss Sara Lambert, 18, daughter of a carpenter here, took her life by firing a bullet through her head. She went to the home of a neighbor to commit the deed.

Lexington.—Motion for a new trial for J. E. Delph was overruled by Judge Charles Kerr. Delph was sentenced to serve four years in state prison for adding names unlawfully to a registration book, but a stay of execution was granted pending a decision from the court of appeals.

Pikeville.—Walter Ward, a miner of Heller, Ky., was held in $1,000 bond by the Federal commissioner here. Witnesses testified that he displayed a handful of cartridges and said: "If I could I would put five or six of these in the head of Woodrow Wilson and five or six others and stop this d—d war."

Ashland.—At a meeting of the Board of Education William Carp, a member of the board, proposed the dropping of German at once from the school. Superintendent J. W. Bradner was opposed to the move and insisted that they continue to teach it until the close of the school term. This was given a favorable decision.

Carlisle.—Sheriff James W. Myers and Chief of Police Leonard Howard were fired upon by a man near this city while they were attempting to place him under arrest. Grayson.—Mrs. Ida Kyle, of near Adkins, is running the farm while her husband is away at work in some productive department to help Uncle Sam. Shelbyville.—Mrs. Lulu Hall Smith, the widow of C. B. Smith, died in her room at Mrs. E. A. Blayde's residence from the effects of arsenic, which she had taken the previous night with suicidal intent. Mrs. Smith had had two strokes of paralysis and it was supposed, when her illness was first discovered, that she was suffering from another attack of the same nature.

Winchester.—Mrs. Mary Holder, mother of Walter Holder, who died recently of spinal meningitis at Fort Thomas, is the beneficiary of her son for an insurance policy amounting to $10,000, which will be payable in monthly settlements for a period of twenty years. This insurance was taken out by the soldier with the government at the special rate, and young Holder had secured a $10,000 policy in this way.

Lexington.—While Robert Clark, a Fayette county farmer, was going to Richmond, and when about two and a half miles from Richmond, his car turned over while going down a hill. Mr. Clark received two broken ribs and a broken collar bone. He was taken to the Patten A. Cay Infirmary.

Flemingsburg.—H. L. Whaley, of this city, has been noticing bees going in and out of the cornice of his house. One day recently he examined the cornice and took six gallons of honey from it.

Olive Hill.—Arvel Wilson, a brickmason, of this place, shot and instantly killed his wife here and then attempted to end his life by shooting himself twice in the left lung. Little hope is entertained for his recovery.

Maysville.—William S. Hertig, arraigned on a charge of cutting W. C. Powell, waived examining trial and was bound over to the Mason grand jury in bonds of $500. The affray is alleged to have occurred on a railroad caboose.

Louisville.—Detective Sergeant David Scanlon, member of the Louisville police force for the past 19 years, shot himself through the head at his home recently. He died a few hours later. Scanlon had grown despondent, members of his family say.

Carlisle.—Several shots struck Chief of Police Leonard Howard and one shot went entirely through the hat of James W. Myers, sheriff of Nicholas county, when they were shot at by a man they were attempting to place under arrest near here.

Hickman.—The Rev. W. F. Renneberg, rector of the Episcopal church here, who has been chief clerk of the Local Exemption Board, has resigned. Mrs. T. R. Powell, clerk in the County Judge's office, who has been acting as second clerk on the board, has taken his place.

Mrs. Lyle reported she had trouble securing members for clubs and made an investigation.

The last victim of these hair clippers is Mrs. A. C. Edmonson, who was attacked when in the yard of her home late at night.

New Castle.—Mrs. Nancy G. Young, who is nearly ninety-two years of age and has spent most of her life in Henry county, but who was with her granddaughter, Mrs. N. D. Alvis, in Louisville, during the past winter, has knitted twenty-five pairs of socks for the Red Cross this winter, besides more than that number of wristlets, and is still knitting for the boys at the front.

Paris.—A threatened raise of 38 per cent in the taxable valuation of Bourbon county property caused the merchants of Paris and the farmers of the county to meet at the court house to enter a vigorous protest. A resolution was adopted to send a committee to Frankfort to notify the state authorities that Bourbon county land was already the highest taxed soil in the state.

Glasgow.—At a meeting of the City Council, the local Board of Health, and the State Board of Health, represented by Dr. Lillian South, held here, it has been ordered that, effective at once, no public meeting of any kind shall be held in Glasgow. These precautions are taken to combat the epidemic of meningitis now in the city. Only homes of the children affected have been quarantined.

Winchester.—Eleven dead, three perhaps fatally injured, eighteen others in the General Hospital under care of physicians and nurses and a score or more scattered throughout the city at their homes with minor cuts and bruises is the result of the calamity which befell this city when the roof of the Pastime Moving Picture Theater was crushed in by falling walls from an adjoining building that had been damaged by fire several days previous.

Winchester.—In the case of the Waterworks Company against the city of Winchester, in which the former sued for some $20,000 for back rentals, Judge Cochran in the federal court handed down a decision in favor of the Waterworks Company.

Maysville.—The Mason County Poultry Association has decided to standardize on the raising of Rhode Island Red chickens and has appointed a committee to distribute the eggs. The committee has received orders for over 5,000 setting eggs.

Long Live The King

MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

COPYRIGHT, 1917, BY THE RIDGWAY COMPANY. ALL RIGHTS RESERVED. COPYRIGHT, 1917, BY MARY ROBERTS RINEHART.

Until late that night General Mettlich and the king talked together. The king had been lifted from his bed and sat propped in a great chair. Above his shabby dressing gown his face showed gaunt and old. In a straight chair facing him sat his old friend and chancellor.

"What it has shown is not entirely bad," said the king, after a pause. "The boy has initiative. And he made no attempt at evasion. He is essentially truthful."

"What it has also shown, sire, is that no protection is enough. When I, who love the lad, and would—when I could sleep, and let him get away, as I did—"

"The truth is," said the king, "we are both of us getting old." He tapped with his gnarled fingers on the blanket that lay over his knees. "The truth is also," he observed a moment later, "that the boy has very few pleasures. He is alone a great deal."

General Mettlich raised his shaggy head. Many years of wearing a soldier's cap had not injured his heavy gray hair. He had bristling eyebrows, white now, and a short, fighting mustache. When he was irritated, or disagreed with any one, his eyebrows came down and the mustache went up.

Many years of association with his king had given him the right to talk to him as man to man. They even quarreled now and then. It was a brave man who would quarrel with old Ferdinand II.

So now his eyebrows came down and his mustache went up. "How—alone, sire?"

"You do not regard that bigoted English woman as a companion, do you?"

"She is a thoughtful and conscientious woman, sire," he said stiffly. It happened that he had selected her. "She does her duty. And as to the boy being lonely, he has no time to be lonely. His tutors—"

"How old is he?"

"Ten next month."

The king said nothing for a time. Then—"It is hard," he said at last, "for seventy-four to see with the eyes of ten. As for this afternoon—why in the name of a thousand devils did they take him to see the 'Flying Dutchman'? I detest it."

"Her royal highness—"

"Annunciata is a fool," said his majesty. Then, dismissing his daughter with a gesture, "We don't know how to raise our children here," he said impatiently. "The English do better. And even the Germans—"

"We Shall Do Well, Sire, to Raise the Boy at All."

It is not etiquette to lower one's eyebrows at a king and glare. But General Mettlich did it. He was rather a poor subject. "The Germans have not our problem, sire," he said, and stuck up his mustache.

"I'm not going to raise the boy a prisoner," insisted the king stubbornly. General Mettlich bent forward and placed a hand on the old man's knee. "We shall do well, sire," he said gravely, "to raise the boy at all."

There was a short silence, which the king broke. "What is new?"

"We have broken up the university meetings, but I fancy they go on, in small groups. I was gratified, however, to observe that a group of students cheered his royal highness yesterday as he rode past the university buildings. The outlying districts are quiet. So, too, is the city. Too quiet, sire."

"They are waiting, of course, for my death," said the king quietly. "If only you were twenty years younger than I am, it would be better." He fixed the general with shrewd eyes. "What do those asses of doctors say about me?"

"Even at the best, sire—" He looked very ferocious, and cleared his throat. He was terribly ashamed that his voice was breaking. "Even at the best, but of course they can only give an opinion—"

"Six months?"

"A year, sire."

"And at the worst?" said the king, with a grim smile. Then, following his own line of thought: "But the people love the boy, I think."

"They do. It is for that reason, sire, that I advise particular caution." He hesitated. Then, "Sire," he said earnestly, "there is something of which I must speak. The Committee of Ten has organized again."

Involuntarily the king glanced at the photograph on the table.

"Forgive me, sire, if I waken bitter memories. But I fear—"

"You fear?" said the king. "Since when have you taken to fearing?"

"Nevertheless," maintained General Mettlich doggedly, "I fear. This quiet of the last few months alarms me. Dangerous dogs do not bark. I trust no one. The very air is full of sedition."

The king twisted his blue-velvet old hands together, but his voice was quiet. "But why?" he demanded, almost fretfully. "If the people are fond of the boy, and I think they are, to—carry him off, or injure him, would hurt the cause. Even the terrorists, in the name of a republic, can do nothing without the people."

"The mob is a curious thing, sire. You have ruled with a strong hand. Our people know nothing but to obey the dominant voice. The boy out of the way, the prospect of the Princess Hedwig on the throne, a few demagogues in the public squares—it would be the end."

The king leaned back and closed his eyes. His thin, arched nose looked pinched. His face was gray.

"All this," he said, "means what? To make the boy a prisoner, to cut off his few pleasures, and even then, at any time—"

"Yes, sire," said Mettlich doggedly. "At any time."

All through the palace people were sleeping. Prince Ferdinand William Otto was asleep, and riding again the little car in the land of delight. So that, turning a corner sharply, he almost fell out of bed.

On the other side of the city the little American boy was asleep also. At that exact time he was being tucked up by an entirely efficient and placid-eyed American mother, who felt under his head to see that his ear was not turned forward. She liked close-fitting ears.

Nobody, naturally, was tucking up Prince Ferdinand William Otto. Or attending to his ears. But, of course, there were sentries outside his door, and a valet de chambre to be rung for, and a number of embroidered eagles scattered about on the curtains and things, and a country surrounding him which would one day be his, unless—

"At any time," said General Mettlich, and was grimly silent.

"Well?" inquired the king, after a time. "You have something to suggest, I take it."

The old soldier cleared his throat. "Sire," he began, "it is said that a chancellor should have but one passion, his king. I have two, my king and my country."

The king nodded gravely. He knew both passions, relied on both. And found them both a bit troublesome at times!

"Once, some years ago, sire, I came to you with a plan. The Princess Hedwig was a child then, and his late royal highness was—still with us. For that, and for other reasons, your majesty refused to listen. But things have changed. Between us and revolution there stand only the frail life of a boy and an army none too large, and already, perhaps, affected. There is much discontent, and the offspring of discontent is anarchy."

The king snarled. But Mettlich had taken his courage in his hands, and went on. Their neighbor and hereditary foe was Karnia. Could they any longer afford the enmity of Karnia? One cause of discontent was the expense of the army, and of the fortifications along the Karnian border. If Karnia were allied with them, there would be no need of so great an army. They had the mineral wealth, and Karnia the seaports. The old dream of the empire, of a railway to the sea, would be realized.

He pleaded well. The idea was not new. To place the little King Otto IX on the throne and keep him there in the face of opposition would require support from outside. Karnia would furnish this support. For a price.

"The price was the Princess Hedwig."

"That is my plea, sire," Mettlich finished. "Karl of Karnia is anxious to marry, and looks this way. To ally discontent and growing insurrection, to insure the boy's safety and his throne, to beat our swords into ploughshares—here he caught the king's scowl, and added—"to a certain extent, and to make us a commercial as well as a military nation, surely, sire, it gains much for us, and loses us nothing."

"But our independence!" said the king sourly.

However, he did not dismiss the idea. The fright of the afternoon had weakened him, and if Mettlich were right the royalist party would need outside help to maintain the throne.

"Karnia!" he said. "The lion and the lamb, with the lion inside the lion! And in the meantime the boy—"

"He should be watched always."

"He has Lussin." Count Lussin was the crown prince's aide-de-camp.

"He needs a man, sire," observed the chancellor rather tartly.

The king cleared his throat. "This youngster he is so fond of, young Larisch, would he please you better?" he asked, with ironic deference.

"A good boy, sire. You may recall that his mother—" He stopped.

Perhaps the old king's memory was good. Perhaps there was a change in Mettlich's voice.

"A good boy?"

"None better, sire. He is devoted to his royal highness. He is outside now."

"Bring him in. I'll have a look at him."

Nikky, summoned by a chamberlain, stopped inside the doorway and bowed deeply.

"Come here," said the king.

"How old are you?"

"Twenty-three, sire."

"In the grenadiers, I believe."

Nikky bowed.

"Like horses?" said the king suddenly.

"Very much, sire."

"And boys?"

"I—some boys, sire."

"Humph! Quite right, too. Little devils, most of them." He drew himself up in his chair. "Lieutenant Larisch," he said, "His royal highness the crown prince has taken a liking to you. I believe it is to you that our fight today is due."

Nikky's heart thumped. He went rather pale.

"It is my intention, Lieutenant Larisch, to place the crown prince in your personal charge. For reasons I need not go into, it is imperative that he take no more excursions alone. I want a real friend for the little crown prince. One who is both brave and loyal."

Afterward, in his small room, Nikky composed a neat, well-rounded speech, in which he expressed his loyalty, gratitude, and undying devotion to the crown prince. It was an elegant little speech. Unluckily, the occasion for it had gone by two hours.

"I—I am grateful, sire," was what he said. "I—And there he stopped and choked up. It was rather dreadful.

"I depend on you, Captain Larisch," said the king gravely, and nodded his head in a gesture of dismissal. Nikky backed toward the door, struck a hassock, all but went down, bowed again at the door, and fled.

"A fine lad," said General Mettlich, "but no talker."

"All the better," replied his majesty. "I am tired of men who talk well. And"—he smiled faintly—"I am tired of you. You talk too well. You make me think. I don't want to think. I've been thinking all my life. It is time to rest, my friend."
